

REMINGTON

When compared with 22 LR cartridge, the 5mm's Magnum character is quite evident.

I'm certain that during the past dozen years I've actually had more opportunities for shots at under 100 yards than at over this distance. It isn't much of an accomplishment to kill chucks at 100 yards or less with a high velocity center-fire varmint rifle, and I've found myself doing more and more of this hunting with my mild mannered rimfire rifles.

The report of the 5mm Remington Magnum is more like that of the 22 Hornet than like our old, quiet-spoken friend the 22 Long Rifle. But it is also
